From Boosey Hawkes : Brooklyn Bridge: for Solo Clarinet and Symphonic Band Full Score before purchasing it in order to gauge whether or not it would be worth my time, and all praised Brooklyn Bridge: for Solo Clarinet and Symphonic Band Full Score:

(Boosey Hawkes Scores/Books). (2005) After the public opening of the Brooklyn Bridge in 1883, Harper's Monthly reported, "The wise man will not cross the bridge in five minutes. . . he will linger to get the good of the splendid view about him." The composer was inspired by the same stunning vistas to write a "panoramic" clarinet concerto. Like the four cables/webs of wire and steel that hold the Bridge together, the concerto has four movements - East, South, West and North - each like a musical "view." It received its premiere performance at Carnegie Hall as part of the College Band Directors National Convention. Duration - ca. 26:00
