Al Schneider : Business Card ESP before purchasing it in order to gauge whether or not it would be worth my time, and all praised Business Card ESP:

A dot is drawn on a business card. A spectator selects an ESP symbol. The dot changes into the ESP symbol chosen by the spectator. This trick is done with business cards. Seven business cards are shown. A felt tip pen is used to put a dot in the middle of one card. A spectator is asked to sign the other side of the card. It is placed aside. The performer draws ESP symbols on the other six cards. Then the performer takes a business card off the top of the little stack and puts it on the bottom of the stack. The performer continues to do this and asks the spectator to say stop. When the spectator says stop, the card the spectator is shown the card stopped at. Then the spectator turns over the signed card. The spot has changed into the symbol selected. All cards can be examined as there is nothing to reveal the method. Nothing is added or taken away. There are only seven cards used. The handling is very natural. Some skill is required. However, it is not extensive. Practice is required. All moves needed are clearly presented in the book.
