Here is practical, write-from-the-gut advice that resounds with experience and integrity. William Froug explores how to keep the dramatic tension in your script and how to find the single line of action and the lines of counteraction.

"What you feel is what counts," he says. He advises keeping the dialogue lean, getting intimate with your characters, revealing information only when it has impact, and knowing how to use the technique of foreshadowing.

About the Author William Froug's name is always on the list of the country's best screenwriting teachers. He was named producer of the year in 1956 by the Producers Guild of America, and won the Valentine Davies Award from the Writers Guild of America in 1987. He is professor emeritus at the University of California, Los Angeles, where he started the Film and TV Writing Program, and he has taught at the University of Southern California. He has written three books: The Screenwriter Looks At The Screenwriter, The New Screenwriter Looks at the New Screenwriter and Screenwriting Tricks of the Trade.
