Radio Spirits, Inc. : The Adventures of Philip Marlowe before purchasing it in order to gauge whether or not it would be worth my time, and all praised The Adventures of Philip Marlowe:

Hard Boiled Private Eye -- Half Baked Plots By George R. Dekle Philip Marlowe is a tough talking, hard fisted private eye who wisecracks and punches his way through eighteen adventures in crime and detection. The characters frequently engage in illogical behavior prompted by inadequate motivation, and Marlowe manages to get himself knocked out at least one time per story. By the eighteen episode I began to suspect that some of Marlowe's more inexplicable actions could be attributed to brain damage. If you put your mind in neutral and simply let the stories carry you along, "Philip Marlowe" can be quite entertaining.

This Detective program was first heard on NBC in the summer of 1947 starring Van Heflin. It reappeared on CBS in the fall of 1948 starring Gerald Mohr as Raymond Chandler's callous detective. Enjoy 18 episodes from the 1949-1950 season.
