Containing some really interesting tidbits, this book is a great conversation starter. Throw one around at the dinner table and see what folks think! There are various subjects from all over the world, so something for everyone. The facts are numbered. There are no illustrations. Here are a few to whet your appetite: 11. 79sq.cm is the surface area of an average brick. 24. Lethologica is the state of not being able to remember the word you want. 55. A McDonalds' Big Mac averages 178 sesame seeds on its bun. 151. A truel is a duel involving three people. 221. The largest litter of puppies ever recorded was 24. 261. Dino from the Flintstones is a snorkasaurus. 387. Sweden has the largest scale model of the solar system in the world. It is in the scale of 1:20 million and stretches 950km across the country. 467. The word "mortgage" comes from a French word that means "death contract". 611. The Sahara desert stretches farther than the distance from New York to Los Angeles. 716. Of the past 3,400 years, humans have been entirely at peach for 268 of them, or just 8% of recorded history. 943. The average lead pencil will write about 50,000 words in English. SO what's not to like about this book. I found two lots of duplicates! Facts 272 and 391 are the same as are 914 and 950. There may be more but that is all that my brain zeroed in on. There are quite a few editing errors: wrong words, poor punctuation. Without the errors I would have awarded this book 4*. PLEASE NOTE that although I have read this entire book I have NOT verified that the information contained within is correct! I downloaded this book for my Kindle. I was not required to write a review but chose to do so. Thanks, Liz

Not as well written as I expected. Most of the information was duplicated in all of the publications and very poorly represented in its published format. Very disappointed as a fan of trivia. 0 of 0 people found the following review helpful. Bedtime stories
