

The Book History Reader

From imusti
*ebooks | Download PDF | *ePub | DOC | audiobook*

Download

Read Online

#856000 in Books imusti 2006-12-07 2006-10-24Original language:EnglishPDF # 1 9.69 x 1.30 x 6.851, 2.18 #File Name: 0415359481576 pagesRoutledge | File size: 37.Mb

From imusti : The Book History Reader before purchasing it in order to gage whether or not it would be worth my time, and all praised The Book History Reader:

0 of 2 people found the following review helpful. Three StarsBy KMjust okay14 of 16 people found the following review helpful. this book deliversBy D. JobThis book covers so much information regarding the history of the book and it is easy reading. From changes through the ages of paper, printing, publishing, authors and the shape of the book itself it covers social aspects of how and why the changes occurred.

Following on from the widely successful first volume, this second edition has been updated and expanded to create an essential collection of writings examining different aspects of the history of books and print culture. Arranged in thematic sections, bringing together a wide range of contributors, and featuring introductions to each section, this new edition: contains more extracts covering issues of gender, material culture and bibliographical matters has a brand new section on the future of the book in the electronic age examines different aspects of book history including: the development of the book, spoken words to written texts, the commodification of books, and the power and profile of readers. This pioneering book is a vital resource for all those involved in publishing studies, library studies, book history and also those studying English literature, cultural studies, sociology and history.

About the Author David Finkelstein is Research Professor of Media and Print Culture at Queen Margaret University, Edinburgh. He is author of The House of Blackwood: Author-Publisher Relations in the Victorian Era and co-author (with Alistair McCleery) of An Introduction to Book History. Alistair McCleery is Professor of Literature and Culture at Napier University, Edinburgh, and Director of the Scottish Centre for the Book. He is co-editor of The Bibliothek.